Public meeting told

Committee pursuing inquiries from MDs

by Andrew Milne

An ad-hoc committee organized to bring doctors into the Minden area announced last week that they have been contacted by interested physicians.

Community Committee for Physicians (CCP) members were unable however to confirm how far along negotiations are.

Also announced during the meeting: the Ministry of Health (MOH) has informed the eight reeves of the catchment area of the Minden hospital that minister Ruth Grier will not be taking the time to visit them to resolve the region's health care crisis. The reeves had been pressing the Health Minister for assistance regarding the closing of the in-patient services at the Minden Hospital. Their letter was sent May 1 and, until just a day before the meeting, they had not received a reply.

The CCP made the announcement about the inquiries at a public meeting May 24 at Archie Stouffer Elementary School, an information session held to announce to residents of the Minden area what progress has been made. CCP member Doug Campbell said they had received the inquiries — to advertisements placed in medical trade publications — only shortly before the meeting.

The CCP told the meeting that its mandate does not concern so much the status of the hospital, as attracting physicians to the region and keeping them here — something they hope to achieve by making physicians aware of the need in the community and the benefits of locating here. The committee has placed advertisements in a number of medical journals inviting inquiries from doctors.

More than 300 people attended the May 24 meeting and heard presentations from CCP members Jeanne Anthon (also reeve of Anson, Hindon, and Minden), Jack Brezina, Campbell, Brian Kernohan, and Ted Wilkes.

Foster Loucks, executive director of the Acting Health Services Board (AHSB), a body formed to take over the operation of hospital services in Haliburton County following their divestment from St. Joseph's, was also present, to speak to the public for the first time since being hired to the position May 1. Loucks described rec-

.....LIGHT WORK: not that this group of Toronto and Hamilton area people didn't already know that from their business experience. They are members of the Toronto Junior Board, a group of young entrepreneurs who donated their time and muscle this past weekend to erect a health centre at Camp Wanakita. Close to 80 members of the organization were on hand for the three day building bee which saw the 1800 square foot exterior of the structure completed by Sunday. A second group of volunteers will arrive at the camp next weekend to complete the interior work. For more pictures of the work in progress see page 21

Contract awarded for county building renovations

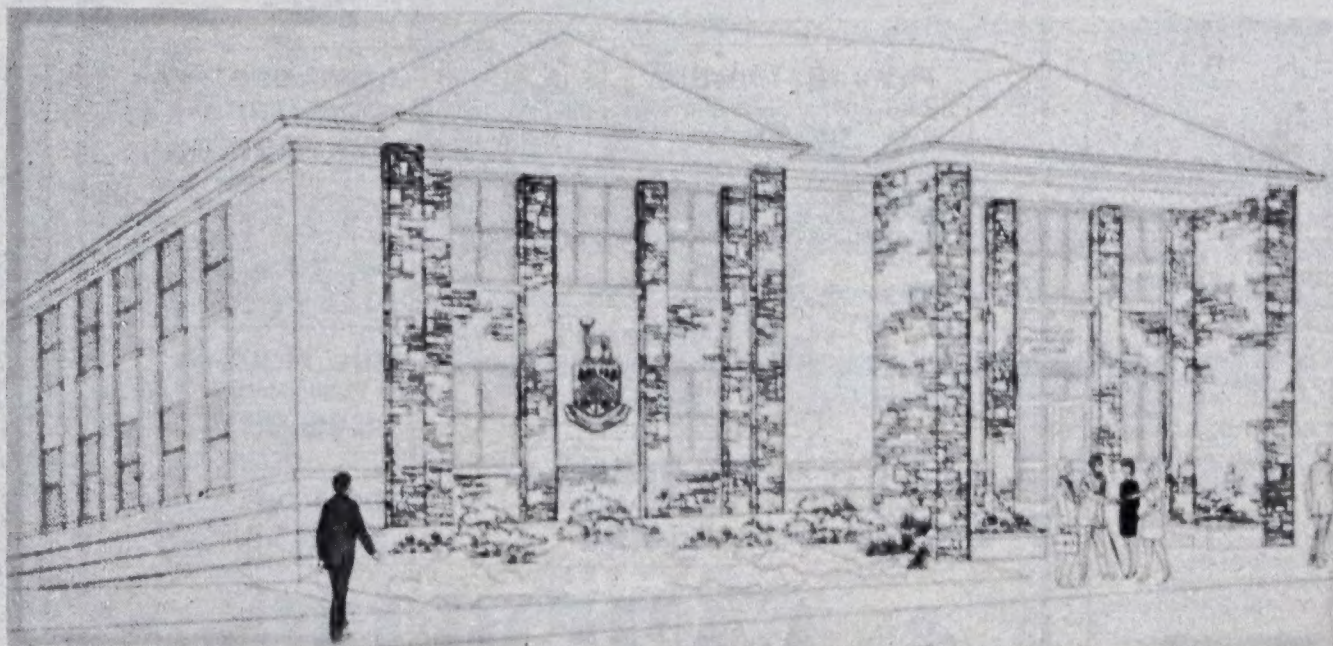

The contract for the renovations and addition to the Haliburton County Administration Building has been awarded to Rodco Enterprise of Haliburton.

Three companies were invited to make presentations during a closed session of County Council last Thursday. The majority of council members favoured the Rodco plan, which came in at $702,800, including GST.

Acting County Administrator Ross Rigney said that all three of the proposals were very close in quality and price but it was the aesthetics of the Rodco design, which kept the character of the present building, that won council's endorsement.

A resolution was passed accepting the Rodco proposal, subject to final approval of the infrastructure grant by the federal government. The provincial government has already given its approval.

County councillors Eleanor Harrison and Murray Fearrey declared conflict of interest in the matter since they both are involved in the building supply business.

NEW LOOK: This is an artist's concept of how the front of the Haliburton County administration building will look after the expansion and renovations are completed. County Council endorsed this $700,000 project last Thursday.

Burger-meisters

A burger day to raise funds for the Miracle Children's Network was held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on May 20 at Campbell's Flower Shop and Garden Centre. The event raised about $275, which will go to the Hospital For Sick Children in Toronto. Several people helped with the organization and operation of the event, including Audrey McMartin, Lisa Connelly, Leigh McKelvey, Ross Bryant, Suzanne Burk, Natasha Gartshore, Chris McKelvey, Chris Kerr and Greg Kerr. "We appreciate everybody's support," said Pat Campbell. Seen above are three of the people who helped run the event. They are: (l to r) Lisa Connelly, Anne Neave and Lynn Cox.

ATV driver killed

The Minden detachment of the OPP is investigating a fatal motor vehicle accident which occurred on a private road in Guilford Township north of the hamlet of Eagle Lake. The accident occurred on May 21.

The victim, Christopher Montmarquet, 24, of Scarborough, was driving alone on his ATV (a four-wheeler) when the throttle apparently became stuck. Witnesses with whom he was riding say the vehicle accelerated, left the road and struck a tree.

The victim was transported to the Haliburton Hospital by ambulance, where he was pronounced dead.

Charged

A number of charges have been laid in connection with the vandalism at the Minden Post Office. OPP officer Rick Googh reports that three Minden residents, Kyle Mann, Tyler Woodcock and a young offender have been charged with mischief under $5000. Mann also faces a similar charge in relation to damage to the property where the Country Magic retail outlet is located.

The three will appear in court in Minden June 7.

Committee explains effort to attract doctors ommendations made by a local group to the administration of St. Joseph's regarding hospital care prior to the AHSB taking over services (see article on this page).

Campbell told the meeting that attracting doctors to a community is very much a "competition." Said Campbell, "Really, we require four doctors living in the local area to operate our hospital on a 24 hour a day, 365 day a year basis — that is the acute care beds and the emergency room... Apparently there are 200 doctors graduating in 1995 in the province of Ontario. So you say 'That's great. We can get some of those.' Until you realize that 380 GPs are retiring in the same year. So we're really not gaining ground on this at all. We therefore are in a real competition to attract a number of doctors to our area."

The trick therefore, say Campbell and the rest of the CCP, is to market the community to physicians and to make opening a practice here more attractive.

CCP members also spoke on:

- an initiative undertaken by the Anson, Hindon and Minden municipal government to apply for recognition under the provincial Underserved Area Program (UAP). This could provide financial incentives to family practitioners establishing a practice in a designated area and provision of operating funds for a community owned clinic among other things, explained Anthon. The UAP is a program established 30 years ago.

- a request for exemption from Bill 50, which would allow recruitment of physicians from outside of Ontario.

- the establishment of a temporary clinic at 31 Allister Drive (behind Hyland Crest) in Minden to house Dr. Bennett Wu. He had formerly been an associate in Holliday-Rhodes practice. Dr. Morris Smith, a semi-retired physician from the Toronto area, is also working in the clinic Fridays.

- that Dr. Wu will be attending a course May 25-27 to renew his qualifications to prescribe narcotics. Wu had voluntarily given up his qualifications for prescribing narcotics.

- that the group has done research into potential sites for a central clinic in which doctors interested in practising in the Minden area could readily set up. The CCP reports they have narrowed down the possibilities to three sites in particular within the Minden commercial area.

Campbell ended his speech with an appeal to those present to keep their eyes open for physicians interested in practising in Minden.

"Let us know," said Campbell. "If you know of general practitioner doctors who would like to come up here to retire. Just think of those ham and egggers down in the big smoke, living in the fog and smog and heat down there and everything else. If they want to come up here to clean living, a quiet way of life, and the grand neighbours they could have — if you can get any names, please let us know."

Staff cuts required to maintain emergency services at hospital

by Andrew Milne

They had good news and bad news.

A local group struck to advise the administration of St. Joseph's in Peterborough on health care in Haliburton County is recommending that the Minden emergency department be reopened to 24 hour, 7 day a week service for the summer, and that certain other rooms in the hospital be run as "stabilization" beds.

However, the Community Advisory Committee (CAC) is also recommending that some of the current staff of the Minden Hospital be laid off and be put on reduced hours to make up the cost of keeping those services open.

Acting Health Services Board (AHSB) executive director Foster Loucks, also in charge of the two Haliburton County hospitals for St. Joseph's until such time as the AHSB takes them over, made the recommendations public May 24 at a meeting of the Community Committee for Physicians (CCP) — see related story.

Loucks did not specifically identify which staff would be affected, however, and the recommendations still need to be approved by St. Joseph's administrators, who were to have met May 26 to discuss them.

Said Loucks, "It comes down to the financial resources that we have — we're paying a large amount of money in order to ensure the availability of physicians for the emergency room. This is only possible by diverting resources that we have had for the other services that have been offered at the hospital in the past. So in effect we're diverting money for the operation of our in-patient unit in order to pay for the physician contract. We are doing this in the belief that the priority for all of us is the knowledge that we have access to emergency services when they are needed. However, in doing this, we have staff who are surplus to our current requirements, so at the present time I'm having to look at the option of curtailing some of their time, cutting some people back to part time, and in some instances, we're faced with the prospect of lay-off notices."

The CAC is also recommending:

- the continued use of contracted physician services (Med-Emerg) to keep the wards open, and for unscheduled primary care.

- a four month contract with a group of doctors from the Lindsay and Barrie areas to provide emergency services for this region. This is currently under negotiation. Says Loucks, "We believe that will help to develop regional linkages... We think that those local ties may assist the committee to lure some doctors who are more or less in this area."

- that Minden hospital obtain an OHIP number to assist in billing, reducing the cost of providing emergency service.

- that a claim be put in to the Ministry of Health for the Small Hospital Operating Allowance. This dividend hasn't been offered for some years, but the Minden and Haliburton facilities weren't paid the money for many of the years they should have been, says Loucks. The cumulative total would come to around $193,000.

• exploration of more community-based care to take the load gradually from hospital in-patient departments, in preparation for expected upcoming cut-backs to health care spending.

• that a letter be sent to the deputy-minister urging a response to the Scott report on doctor fee schedules in rural hospitals. "At the present time there's a struggle going on between the government and the Ontario Medical Association. The argument is over whether money should be taken from the OHIP pool of funds in order to pay doctors in small hospitals such as ours an hourly fee in order to staff emergency rooms. This is a crucial part of what needs to be resolved by a new government. It's important for us in order to restore the services that we have had in the past," said Loucks.

Youths apologise for damage to museum

Two local boys, aged 10 and 18, attended Thursday's meeting of Anson, Hinds and Minden council to express their apologies for causing some damage at the County Town Museum.

The older of the two boys expressed his appreciation to council and to OPP constable Rick Gooch for giving them the opportunity to make amends.

"It was very much uncalled for," he said. "Thank you for the opportunity to make restitution."

The two boys broke a number of windows, including an expensive stained glass window in the museum complex, with slingshots. Damages were in excess of $500. They were given the opportunity to apologize and pay for the damages as well as perform some community service instead of facing charges in court.

"I've learned my lesson," said the younger boy. "I'll be working for my father this summer to earn money to pay for the damages."

Reeve Jeanne Anthon told the boys that the museum complex is a "labour of love" for the many volunteers who have worked so hard to make it what it is.

"Some of those people are over 80 years of age," she told them. "I hope that some day you'll take an interest in the museum."

Constable Gooch said that neither of the boys had been in trouble before and under the circumstances, he thought they deserved a second chance.

"It was a very stupid thing they did," Gooch said. "They were remorseful for their actions. It was totally out of character."

Gooch cautioned that there would be no more second chances. He added that the decision to allow the boys to apologise and make restitution was a joint decision between police and the municipal council.

Board votes to close Victoria Street School

by Andrew Milne

"Be it resolved that the Victoria Street Elementary School be closed, effective August 31, 1997."

That resolution, passed unanimously in a recorded vote at the May 23 meeting of the Haliburton County Board of Education, closes for the last time an institution which has been part of the life of Haliburton County for 70 years.

There were surprisingly few people in attendance to see it happen. The subject of a protracted and sometimes acrimonious debate, opposed by community groups whose reverence and affection for the venerable institution were pronounced, the decision to close the school was almost anticlimactic, at the moment it was made official. The board had clearly anticipated there might be some public interest, and had provided seating for a crowd, but only around a dozen attended.

There were some fireworks, however. Perhaps the most telling criticism, voiced by members of the public speaking to the issue, was that the board hadn't been sufficiently public about the process. Said Jane Johnston, who works as a volunteer at Victoria Street, "How much have you talked to the parents about this? There has been no open discussion."

Barb Elliot, whose children attend VSES, described herself as "frustrated" by the process of consultation the board had followed, and said she felt the information provided by the board on the situation was inadequate for the public to be able to take an informed position on the issue. "The public can only comment on what they have been provided with," said Elliot.

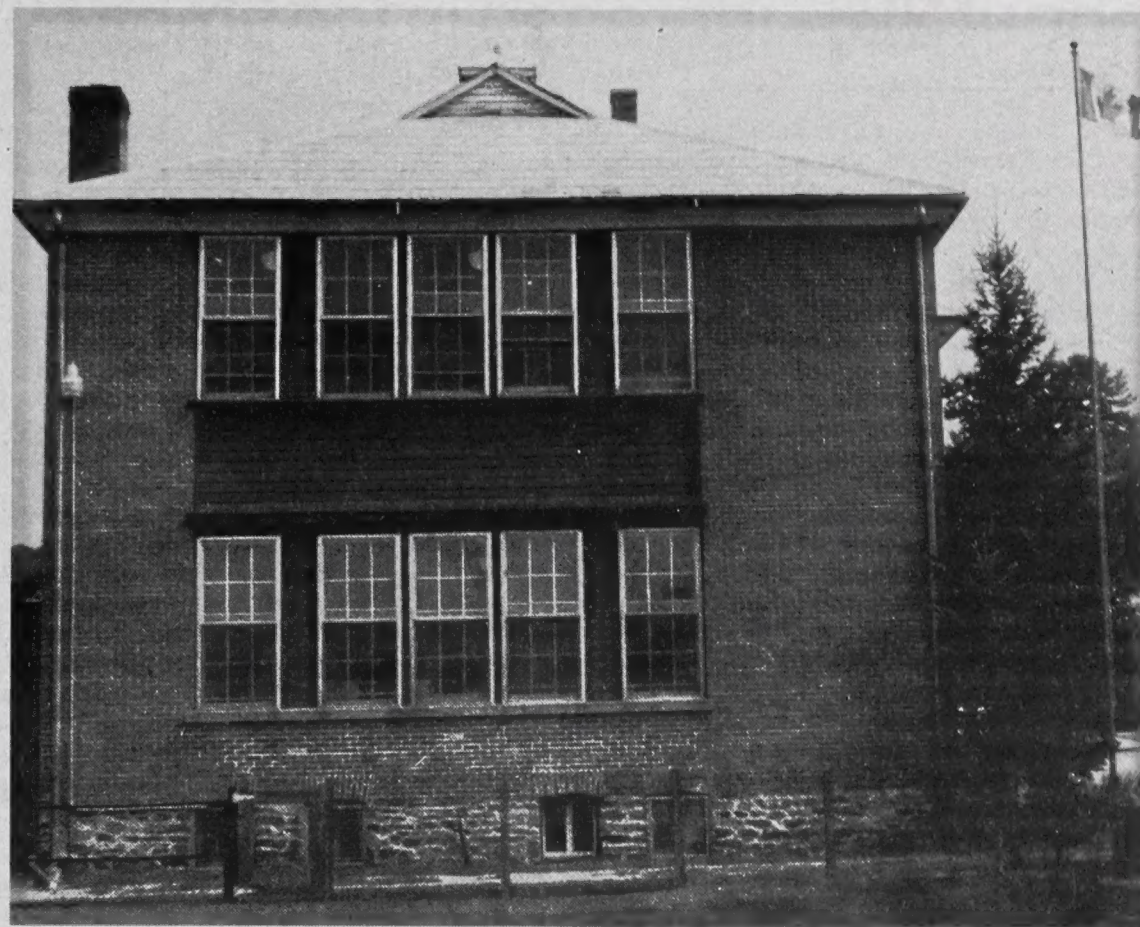

Board members, however, said that there had been substantial discussion of the issue, though they acknowledged that perhaps it hadn't always been as public as it could have been. Said board chair John Munro, "I recognize that the perception of the public is that it hasn't been openly debated at the table. I think there has been a tremendous amount of debate — not so much at the table at the times a delegation came forward, but it has come up many times at other meetings. It has been a hot topic of debate and discussion in the hallways and afterwards. I can attest that I have received phone calls from trustees regarding it, and from the public."

And if the public felt they hadn't heard the board members' reasons for supporting the closure before, any present at the May 23 meeting could have heard plenty. The vote on the motion was recorded (and unanimous), and prior to the vote, each and every trustee qualified to vote spoke to the issue, giving their reasons. Many of the trustees expressed sympathy for the concerns brought forward by the public delegations, and some even acknowledged that some very valid points had been made.

Said Dysart et al trustee Len Salvatori, "When the election was on, people phoned me and asked me what I thought about Victoria Street School. And my answer to them was that I thought we should close the school, and move down to the other property. And some people said to me 'I will not vote for you'. I said, well, that's how I feel... I believe in a democracy where everybody has their say — it's their money — it's all of our money. But I was elected, and I hope we can make the right decision for you people."

Salvatori, along with a number of other trustees, says he was impressed by members of the public speaking of the protected, nurturing atmosphere of the small school, and that he would now support building a physically separate facility on the J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School site, rather than enlarging the current facility, as was done at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden.

Victoria Street Elementary School in Haliburton will close August 31, 1997.

Chip Trueman, also representing Dysart, said, "There has been much discussion regarding the secure and cozy atmosphere the small primary school has to offer. I wholeheartedly agree with this idea. However, I don't feel this would be jeopardized by combining the school with the JDH site. We currently have two other schools in our system that house kids from kindergarten to grade eight. The problems simply don't exist. I personally talked with Rosie Kennedy and Peter Forgrave, the principals at Cardiff and Archie Stouffer. They have assured me that the younger children fit in well and are equally cared for in the bigger schools."

Board members also appealed to members of the public present for the meeting to continue to support the school system and the children that attend it.

The board concerns leading to the closure are (1) the facility does not meet current fire code regulations, (2) the facility is too small to house its student population, and may well face an increased student population in years to come, (3) expansion and renovation of the facility is made difficult by the small size of the property, and the stone foundation on which the original 70-year old structure was built, (4) the cost of renovating the site would be comparable with that of erecting a new facility (5) a substantial portion of the property is quite wet, and in the spillway of past and potential floods, and (6) bus access to the property is extremely con-stricted, leading to safety concerns.

Public advocates opposing the closure say they are concerned (1) that the protected, nurturing atmosphere the younger (K-2) student population enjoys at the smaller school will be lost when those students are moved to an enlarged complex on the Hodgson property serving older students, (2) that the student population will suffer from being further isolated from the milieu of the village, from being less able to attend and participate in community events, (3) that the volunteer base that supports Victoria Street will be less enthusiastic about the new facility.

The process of designing and building the facility to take the student load from Victoria Street will begin immediately, according to the board.

Call For Reservations

Minor Hockey officials raise concerns about 22% increase in ice time rental

by Jerry Grozelle

Paul Lowe, secretary of the Minden Minor Hockey Association appealed to council to reconsider its recent decision to increase the ice rental rate at the Minden Arena.

In an effort to keep the annual deficit at the arena to $100,000 or less, the Recreation Committee recommended the ice rental be increased from $45 to $55 per hour, an increase of 22 per cent.

Lowe explained that the minor hockey association has absorbed the increasing costs in order to keep the cost of registration at $190 per player for the season. He said that the increase in ice rental and an increase in insurance costs would escalate the fees the association would have to charge to $230 per player.

There are a lot of parents who are having a hard time coming up with $190 for their kids to play hockey, let alone $230," he said.

He explained that there are "grey" areas where players have the option of playing either in Minden or in Haliburton.

"Haliburton charged $150 per player last season and their rates are only going up five per cent for next year," Lowe said.

He added that Minden stands to lose as many as 30 per cent of its hockey players to Haliburton or because parents simply can't afford the extra cost.

"Those people who live in that grey area could save $160 by going to Haliburton if they have two kids playing hockey," Lowe said. "There are some families that have three kids playing hockey... I can see registration dropping drastically."

It was pointed out to council that the Minden Minor Hockey Association rented about 550 hours of ice time over the 1994-95 season. An increase of $10.70 (plus GST) would increase the association's cost by $5,885.

Lowe said the association is trying to secure a place in Minden to sell Nevada tickets to help raise money. He added that there are so many other worthy causes that people are asked to donate to that minor hockey doesn't rank high on the list for donors.

Councillor Daryl Moore, who is a member of the Recreation Committee, said that the committee discussed the situation at length following minor hockey's presentation at the recreation meeting. Two options were discussed that would ease the financial burden on the minor hockey system temporarily.

One option was to waive the premium that is normally charged for ice time early and late in the season

(September and April). The other option was to retain the current fee schedule until the end of this year and have the increases come into effect on January 1, 1996.

Councillor Moore suggested that Minor Hockey approach some of the local service clubs to see if they might be interested in helping to subsidize the association's expenses.

Lowe said that the association realizes that the two biggest users of ice time, Minor Hockey and the Minden Skating Club are getting their ice time at rates below market value, and he appreciated that fact. But he still had grave concerns about area residents' willingness or ability to handle the increase.

Councillor Grant Plooard, who chairs the recreation committee, explained that council has to justify the deficit to all of the municipality's taxpayers and that it would be difficult to explain why they allowed the deficit to increase beyond the current $100,000 level.

"We (the recreation committee members) spent a lot of time on this," Plooard said. "It's not something we took lightly."

Reeve Anthon acknowledged the value that minor hockey provides for the youth of the area.

10-K Railway Trek

The Kinmount Committee for Planning and Economic Development is sponsoring a Railway Trek on Sunday, June 4, to raise money for the Heritage Parkland Project in Kinmount.

The 10 kilometre trek will leave the Kinmount Railway Station at 1 p.m. and proceed along the old railway corridor to the home of Russ and Joan Duhaime on Haliburton County Road 1.

Sponsor sheets are available at Scott's IGA in Kinmount or from any of the committee members.

When Trekkers reach the Duhaime residence they will be treated to hot dogs and pop and, if they need to cool off, a dip in the pool. Draw prizes will also be awarded.

Return transportation will be provided on a trolley, which will follow the walkers to the destination.

Organizers invite potential participants to "experience the natural beauty which surrounds us and relive the history of the CN Railway."

Those who are unable to walk the distance are invited to ride the trolley.

Righting a wrong

One of the unfortunate aspects of our judicial system is that those who contravene the community's code of conduct are often unaware of the impact of their actions. Therefore it was refreshing to witness a brief encounter at last week's Anson, Hindon and Minden municipal council meeting.

Two youths who had admitted to a number of incidents of vandalism at the Minden Museum complex appeared, with their parents, before the members of the council, to apologise for their actions, agree to make restitution for the damage, and provide some hours of community service as a penance for their action.

Vandalism is not a victimless crime. The breaking of the windows at the museum buildings resulted in physical damage, some of which can hopefully be repaired. But the unseen impact of that sort of crime is the effect it has on those who have worked hard to create something positive for the community. Reeve Anthon noted that there are many people in the community who have spent countless hours on the museum project, nurturing it from an idea to a reality. The vandalism probably did more damage to the dreams of the museum volunteers than it did to the buildings itself.

It appeared, from the comments of the youths, that they had some realization of the impact of their actions and were willing to make amends. The fact that their parents were also in attendance bodes well for a lesson learned and for the fact that the responsibility is shared.

We also commend Constable Rick Gough for his efforts in bringing this matter to a conclusion. As Minden's community policing officer he is making an effort to reduce the amount of petty crime in the community. Making first time minor offenders see the error of their ways and change their attitudes will pay bigger dividends in the long run than relying solely on punishment.

County Council considers renovation options for county building

Objects to the relocation of the library

Editor:

It has come to my attention that there is a move by members of County Council to close our Minden library and move the facility to the local elementary school. As a user of the library and as a citizen of this community I am very concerned about this idea which I find one of the most idiotic ideas ever conceived by our elected officials. The reason is to save money. The taxpayer certainly won't realize any savings as it will just appear in a new column of our tax bill.

I cannot comprehend how our county librarian would ever accept this idea unless he just doesn't care what happens to the libraries in this county.

It would seem that everything possible is being done to create a ghost town out of our town.

If the library is moved to the school it will cease to function in any way as it now does. It will be of little value to the reading public. The library would become part of the existing school library and would come under the jurisdiction of the Board of Education and therefore would be operated according to its schedules. What would happen on Saturdays and holiday periods? Would it be open? How often?

Would there be hours which were for the public alone or would one have to vie with the students in order to use the library?

To me this type of situation would be totally unacceptable to the reading public.

If we don't want this to happen we must let our elected representatives know our views and do it quickly or the decision will already be made.

A concerned user of the library,

Gareth Kellett,
Minden

'Many landowners will be forced to clear-cut their property'

Chamber of Commerce challenges NDP on rebate issue

The President of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, Brian Dean, has urged citizens of the province to quiz NDP candidates in their ridings about what the party's policy is regarding the management and long-term viability of private forests in Ontario. The challenge was contained in a press release issued Friday by the local Chamber.

The statement reads: "The Rae government brought out its new Sustainable Forest initiative, worth two million dollars, late last fall. This program, the panacea for forestry in the 90's was to have been in place by April 1 of this year. As of today's date, no one in the industry has heard of this initiative in action. Rae, elected on a platform which proclaimed the 'greening of Ontario' has done just the opposite with respect to the private forests in the province.

"We in the Haliburton Highlands, and in many surrounding areas, rely on well-managed forests to maintain our tourism industry," Dean stated. "Within our county, we have many large tract landowners who are being forced to implement their own management policies again. Many of these responsible stewards waited with intense interest for details of this new program. They are not happy people," Dean stated.

According to the chamber, "To compound the problem, we have learned that the Rae government has spent almost two million dollars on a marketing campaign to show off the new policy to the people of the province. We have not seen any signs of this marketing strategy."

"To make matters worse for the tourism industry in the Haliburton Highlands and adjoining regions, the NDP government, after a two-year delay, still has not resolved the Managed Forest Tax Rebate (MFTR) issue," Dean said. "This delay by the Rae government will lead to the closure of almost all of our snowmobile and cross-country ski trails in the county on November 1 of this year. Private landowners, at that time, will be denying access by the general public to their property. As a result of this closure, approximately 120-150 tourism-related jobs will be lost in the industry this coming winter." Dean states that if the MFTR is not reinstated, many of these landowners will be forced to clear-cut their properties, to pay the realty taxes. The president of the chamber asked, "Who will come to the once-pristine Highlands to view scarred forested lands in the summer and fall seasons?"

According to the release, incumbent MPP, Chris Hodgson (PC) has fought for this issue in the house, but to no avail. Liberal candidate Sharon McCrae has also taken a great interest in the issue. Dean stated, "The Haliburton Forest Owners Inc. has in its possession, signed letters from both the present opposition party leaders stating that if they are elected they will reinstate the Managed Forest Tax Rebate. The MFTR is not only an issue in the Haliburton Highlands, other forested regions, such as the Land of Lakes, have made this into a provincial election issue as well."

Dean concluded, "if the NDP is re-elected on June 8, the private forests in the province will be the losers." He went on to say that he believes, as the representative of 270 businesses in Halibur-ton County, that within 12 months, primary and secondary tourism-related businesses will also be so badly maimed that it will be impossible for many of them to recover.

"It is very clear to us that the NDP government has to go."

Only one promise

Editor:

The main question is how do we maintain health care, educational and other programs given the $3.6 billion shortfall in federal funds?

We are already involved in restructuring services because of previous federal cutbacks. The NDP government in Ontario has saved $2 billion and 40,000 jobs under the Social Contract. We have to put these savings directly into cancer and dialysis treatment, into providing care for seniors in their own homes, into more child care spaces and into the Jobs Ontario training programs and social welfare payments.

We are only making one promise in this election: There will be no two-tiered health care under an NDP Bob Rae Government.

Cathy Vainio,
NDP Candidate

In Haliburton, the advance poll

Election day is June 8.

Stepping out as a 'walking rummage sale'

I make my fashion choices based on what doesn't itch.

Gilda Radner

Let me declare my position on haute couture right off the top. I am not a fashion plate. My wardrobe could perhaps best be described as proto-slobovian. I look like a walking rummage sale. My idea of formal wear is runners with the laces tied.

When it comes to Klein, I'm more Ralph than Calvin. Lately I've been happier than Rita McNeil at an All You Can Eat Smorgasbord.

It's the Business Fashion Revolution. For most of the past year, there's been a kind of renaissance in business dress. Everywhere you looked the crusty, blue serge troglodytes that run the wheels of commerce in this country were suddenly, unaccountably Lightning Up. Secretaries, accountants, salesmen and other office functionaries were allowed to show up for work in casual attire.

The president of IBM appeared on the front page of the Globe and Mail's Report on Business dressed in Jack Fraser slacks and a cashmere sweater.

My teller down at the local branch cashed my paycheque while wearing a T-shirt and Levis.

General Motors of Canada announced that its 5000 salaried workers would be permitted to wear jeans on Fridays, providing they each contributed a loonie to the United Way.

I was delirious. At last, after a lonely lifetime shuffling along in droopy (but comfortable) drawers and ratty runners -- vindication! The rest of the world had finally noticed that Dressing Up is a pain in the butt.

And in the throat, and feet and everywhere else business dress conspires to throttle, and enslave the human body.

Take the necktie. What kind of sadist decided that what the men of this world really needed was a strip of cloth knotted like a garrote around their adam's apples for eight hours a day?

The business suit is just as senseless.

Not heavy enough to keep you warm in winter; not light enough to stop you from sweating like a boar in a sauna, come the dog days of summer.

And then there's the dinky little toe rubbers you're supposed to put over the dopey little business shoes.

And women's fashions! How about those abominations we expect women to put up with? Such as corsets. Brasieres. High heels. I haven't even mentioned that stuff.

Mostly because I hardly ever wear 'em.

But as I say, no need to wax apoplectic about the horrible constrictions of business attire any longer, because the Tycoons of Commerce, God bless 'em, have finally wised up.

Or so I thought.

Turns out I was premature. The pin-striped pinheads at the top have had yet another change of heart.

The Dress Code Backlash is under way.

First sign of it was a terse directive from Mr. D. W. Munger, vice president and general director of personnel for General Motors of Canada. Basically, the memo says that Jean Days for GM employees are toast.

Cancelled immediately.

Why? Because, claims Mister Munger, the wearing of jeans "conflicts with GM's efforts to set dress standards for salespeople."

The suits in the boardroom freaked because they feared many workers were "too relaxed".

Geez. Can't have that, can we?

Ah well. I knew in my unkempt heart of hearts that the liberalization of business dress was too good to last. No doubt other businesses will follow GM's lead and start placing their employees in polyester bondage once again.

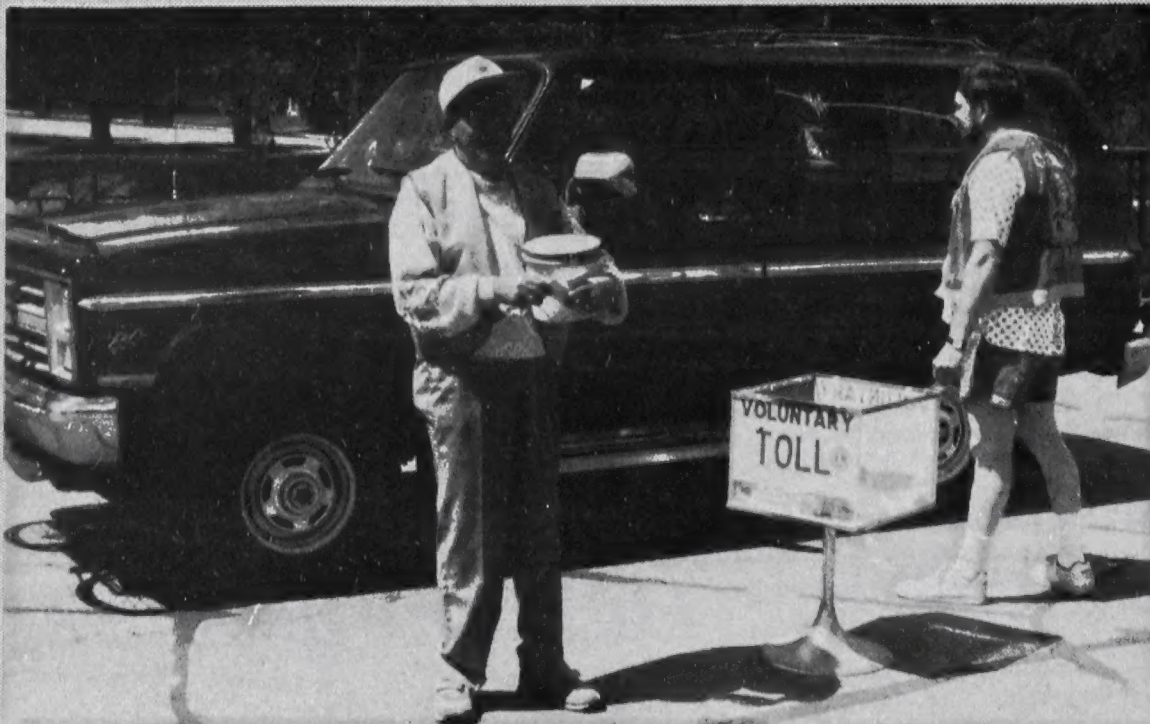

Not that it affects me personally. If there's one job you don't have to dress up for, it's writing a newspaper column. In fact, Mister Munger, if you're reading this...

I want you to know that I'm naked.

$2,600 in tolls collected

About $2,600 was raised by the Minden Lions Club at its annual toll booth on the bridge in Minden on May 20. Motorists crossing the bridge were asked by members of the club to make a voluntary donation and over the course of several hours most contributed to the cause. The funds will be used by the Lions Club for community projects, a number of which, are already in the works.

Senior curlers recognized for accomplishments

by Dave McAdam

The Minden Seniors' Curling Club held its annual Awards Banquet at the Community Centre on May 12. This, of course, is the event where awards for the team talents are recognized by the club with the presentation of several glittering trophies to the deserving teams. The team curlers' names are engraved onto the shields mounted on the various trophies alongside the names of winning teams from past curling seasons.

Over the years, the MSCC has acquired quite a few trophies from both personal and commercial donors who support our activities.

Ross Codlin and his committee did an excellent job formulating an enjoyable evening of friendly socializing, good fare and entertainment as well as dancing.

President Ross Davies and treasurer Harold McCarthy, with the help of MC Harry Troup, presented the trophies to the winning teams from the Mixed League, the Women's and the Men's leagues. In addition, Ken Walsh presented OCA eight point end acknowledgement pins and photos of his team with the eight-point house laid out. His team consisted of skip Ken Walsh, vice Hazel Maxwell, second Jack Sykes and lead Rene Codlin.

Curlers are now shining up their golf clubs for the tournament on June 6.

KENNEDY TROPHY: Skip Tom Hurtt, vice Joan Davies and second Harry Troup (l to r) are seen here accepting the trophy for the Minden Seniors' Curling Club's second-half championship of the Mixed League. Lead Wanda Carter was absent.

ED & PEGGY PETTINGER TROPHY: The Men's League second half winners in Minden Seniors' Curling Club action were: (l to r) lead Erskine Flook, skip Gil Scott, presenters Ed and Peggy Pettinger. Absent: Vice Stan Hill and second Don Gortley.

Setting Priorities

Ontario's provincial budget has more than doubled over the past 10 years, while the level of services has remained essentially the same.

"It's apparent that Ontario has a spending problem," says Chris Hodgson. By setting priorities and improving efficiency a PC government will reduce the tax burden and stimulate economic growth. Chris Hodgson's priorities are:

- Health Care
"We will not cut health care spending. It's far too important"
- Law Enforcement
Funding for law enforcement and justice is guaranteed.
- Education
Guaranteed classroom funding for education will promote excellence in education.

The following are items discussed at the May 25 meeting of the Anson, Hindon and Minden municipal council.

No parking!

Illegal parkers beware. The municipality will be issuing tickets to those who park on the corner in front of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce on Main Street.

Parking too close to the corner is an increasing problem and to deter people from stopping in the illegal zone, By-law enforcement officer Doug Schell has been authorized to ticket vehicles in that area.

Those who are caught parking illegally face a $10 fine.

Road closure

Bobcaygeon Road will be closed for two or three days in late June for the replacement of a culvert on Beaver Creek where it crosses south of Scotch Line Road.

Insurance hike

Insurance coverage for the municipality will cost $8,842 more this year than it did last year. Council accepted the quote from Frank Cowan Co. Ltd. at $48,256, an increase of 22 per cent over last year ($39,414).

Arena ad boards

AH&M council entered into an agreement with County Sign and Display for the manufacture and installation of advertising boards around the ice surface of the arena.

The cost to advertise on the arena boards is $562 per year with a three-year contract.

Final meeting.

With holes in the walls, a number of benches missing and new duct work dangling from the ceiling, the council held what will likely be its last regular meeting in the old council chambers. The new, ground level facility is rapidly approaching completion and could be ready for the next regularly scheduled meeting of council on June 8.

The new structure, built with the assistance of the provincial and federal governments will also be the site of court hearings in the county. The municipality is planning an official opening for later this summer.

Haliburton Home Show promises a fresh new look Haliburton Home and Cottage Show organizer Wayne Hussey is promising a fresh new look for the 17th annual edition of the event.

"We have 135 exhibitors lined up this year and of those, 50 will be new to the show," he stated last week.

The show is sponsored by the Haliburton Curling Club. Hussey has been working since last year to bring the show together.

New this year will be an outdoor display area in front of the curling and squash club. Some of the exhibitors in this area will include landscaping contractors, a portable sawmill operator, a retailer of an "outdoor furnace", tree service, docks crane services and more.

Indoors, 31 new display areas have been opened making it the largest in the show's history. 80 exhibitors are located on the floor of the arena, 30 on the curling club ice surface and 30 in the auditorium of the arena.

The adjacent ball diamond will be opened for parking as well as the arena parking lot. A number of concessions will also offer food for visitors to the show including the curling club's beef on a bun and the Haliburton Minor Hockey's booth in the arena.

According to Hussey, visitors to the show can expect to see displays featuring: boats and kayaks; security systems; maple syrup; building supplies; log homes; satellite systems; plumbing, heating and electrical; freeze-proof water systems; financial services; real estate services; furniture and appliances; insulating systems; windows and doors, carpeting and much more. "As you can see, there is something here for everyone," Hussey said.

The Haliburton Home and vacation Show opens Friday at 4 p.m. and will remain open until 10 p.m. On Saturday the doors will be open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from noon until 4 p.m. Admission to the show is free.

Publicly supported housing: two views

Staanworth chairman upset with implications of newspaper articles

Jerry Rome chairman of the Staanzworth Non-profit Housing Corporation has reacted with concern to a series of articles appearing in recent editions of the Toronto Star. The Star articles have uncovered incidents of what it believes to be mismanagement, graft and waste.

"The headline on the Star's Saturday (May 20) front page story, 'Housing Millions Down the Drain' tars many who are in the business of providing non-profit housing for their community, including Staanzworth," Rome said. He noted that it wasn't mentioned until the last paragraph of the article that municipally operated non-profit housing efforts are generally well run. While Staanzworth Housing is not in fact a municipal enterprise, when it was first established, three area townships provided the guidance to get it up and running. (In fact, the rather convoluted name of the organization was created from township names, Stanhope, Anson (Hindon and Minden) and Lutterworth.)

"We want to assure the community that the Staanzworth Non-profit Housing corporation is in fact well run," Rome said. "We have completed three projects and all have come in under budget."

The corporation is responsible for building and managing Staanzworth Court and Staanzworth Terrace, two apartment complexes near the Minden arena with 74 units which cater to seniors, and the family oriented town house development, with 20 units, known as Floralan Gardens, off Prince Street. A fourth 40 unit project is currently in the works, designed for a mixture of families and seniors. It will also provide assisted housing services.

"Whenever we undertake a project, our expenditures are carefully scrutinized by the province. Our annual budget is submitted to the province for approval and we must stay within the allotment," he said. According to the Chairman, all three projects have operated within the allotted budget or have been under budget in the past.

He noted that while the rents in the units can be subsidized, most residents pay something toward their rent and some tenants pay full market value.

In the past, the Corporation's board of directors has been made up of volunteers from the three townships served. Under new government regulations, a third of the seats on the board must go to residents from the projects. "We are already moving in that direction and have some members on the board now, the chairman said.

"Staanzworth is a volunteer board and many of the people have worked long and hard to achieve what we have here in this community," Rome concluded. "I wouldn't want to see their efforts belittled because of these articles."

Local real estate board calls for an end to public housing subsidies

Linda Baumgartner, the president of the Haliburton District Real Estate Board has called for the provincial party leaders and candidates to abolish Ontario's non-profit subsidized housing program.

According to Baumgartner the program has grown dramatically in recent years and claims that Ontario taxpayers are now contributing $1 billions annually to subsidized non-profit housing. She noted that despite rising vacancy rates in most parts of the province, new subsidized housing projects continue to be approved at enormous public expense.

"It's a 'boondoggle'. I just don't understand how the government can justify building more subsidized units when there are vacancies in existing buildings that could be used to help people in need right now and at far less cost," Baumgartner said. "Even the provincial auditor has noticed the unreasonably high cost of this program. It is time to put a stop to this waste."

The president of the local association said there was a place for government support of those in need, but suggested that a system of housing supplements should be put in place. She suggested such a system could assist thousands more in Ontario at a fraction of the current cost.

The members of the real estate board will be asking local candidates how they stand on the issue during the election campaign. The association represents 83 realtors in the Haliburton County area.

Timbersport ready for third year

Minden's third annual Ontario Timbersport Festival takes place June 9-10 on the main street.

Competitions in the festival include axe throwing, pole climbing, springboard chop, and hot saws. Organizer Bob Patton says the Minden festival is also adding five new events this year — including a couple of women's events and an antique chainsaw event.

At only three years old, the Minden event boasts the largest purse in Ontario, at $4,000.

Patton also says the Minden competition is expecting to attract some of the best in North America.

They're world class competitors," he says "some of the top ones out of the States and out of Quebec... There are some coming from Michigan this year, and they're supposed to be right up there. I know the ones from Finger Lakes part of New York State — there are a few of them down there that are right up in the top end of this competition."

Wanakita work bee

It was just like an old fashion barn raising, except it wasn't a barn that was going up and these neighbours didn't come from just down the road. This past weekend an eager group of about 80 young Toronto and Hamilton area business people arrived at Camp Wanakita on Koshlong Lake to build a health centre for the YMCA camp. The builders were members of the Toronto Junior Board, who every year donate their time for a weekend to construct a building for a worthy recipient. "These people work mostly in offices," says project co-ordinator Laura Reeves, "so this is a nice chance to get out of the city and into the outdoors. It is so satisfying to work on something like this because we have something substantial when we're done." This is the thirtieth year they have done a project like this. A second group, the International Facility Management Association will follow this group next weekend to finish the interior of the building.

ISN'T THERE A BETTER WAY?

Ontario's subsidized non-profit housing program costs too much, subsidizes those who don't need help, and leaves thousands in need on waiting lists.

The Provincial Auditor recently reported that a number of non-profit projects were allocated to communities with high vacancy rates. Operating and administration costs of non-profit projects were sometimes more than 2.5 times the costs of comparable private rental facilities.

ISN'T THERE A BETTER WAY TO HELP THOSE IN NEED?

Yes. Housing supplements can assist thousands more people at a fraction of the cost of subsidized non-profit housing. They offer privacy, flexibility, and mobility to those who need help. And you don't have to pay for bureaucratic inefficiency! Where does your candidate stand on subsidized housing?

A MESSAGE FROM THE HALIBURTON DISTRICT REAL ESTATE BOARD

Ingoldsby Boycotting Lochlin Olympics

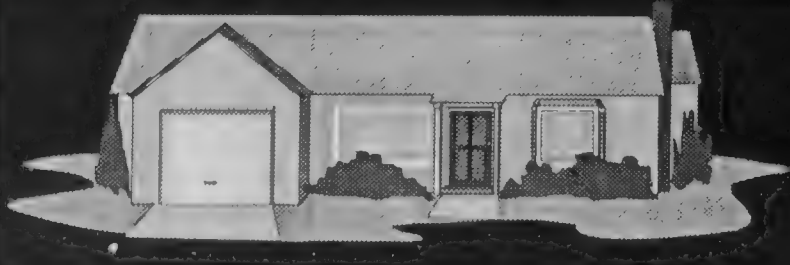

An investigation is underway in regards to the Lochlin Olympics.

Buddy Paw-ford and his owner were notified of their disqualification, due to illegal substances found in their urine samples.

Prior to the long distance dog and owner race, Buddy was signaled by his opponent Hendly Davis, to meet in the bush and go on a pre-race test. This is where the owners feel that Buddy was probably tricked into drinking from Hendly's "drugged" water dish as Buddy's owner was also offered a thirst quencher at the same time.

The committee has demanded that Buddy and his owner return the "gold" medals that they had won. The Paw-fords refused and will boycott the Lochlin Olympics until Hendly Davis and his owner confess the truth.

Seminar focuses on money management for women

by Misty Bennett

The Minden branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank was host to an entirely female crowd for a presentation entitled "Women In The Know", a wealth management seminar for women. The presentation was held at the Minden Curling Club on May 23.

This program was developed by TD Asset Management, a subsidiary of the Toronto-Dominion Bank. The guest speaker for the evening was Monique Homer of Sudbury. Homer's visit here is one of several hundred she will be making over the next few months.

States Homer, "Over the past seven years or more, TD Asset Management has gone out across Canada presenting seminars on Mutual Funds." During this time there has been a great interest in the fundamentals of wealth management, especially presentations geared toward women.

Homer brought to the attention of her audience many important facts that stress the point that starting early and making regular investments yield the best long-term results.

"The Canada Pension Plan has no more than perhaps 20 years worth of benefits in it," Homer told the group. As a result, individuals will have to take greater responsibility for their financial well-being including setting money aside on a regular basis and ensuring the money is invested properly and will earn interest. This was the focus of Homer's presentation.

Homer stressed it was important to spend some time learning about investing. She noted there are three important aspects to any investment including safety, income, and growth.

The safety area tends to be the most familiar to people. This group includes savings accounts, treasury bills, Canada Savings Bonds, and GICs. In these cases, income is earned in the form of interest and the money is easily accessible.

Monique Homer makes a point as she addresses a women only investment seminar, held recently in Minden.

The income area includes longer term GICs and bonds and mortgages (money that is lent to individuals or companies who in turn secure the loan with their fixed assets). Income in this area can be earned by selling the bonds at a higher price than what was paid for them.

The growth area, as explained by Homer is comprised solely of shares in companies. Money is made in this area via dividend income through profits distributed to shareholders. Another source of income occurs when the shares increase in value and are sold at a higher price.

Homer also stressed the importance of global investing; investing is shares of companies operating in foreign countries. She noted that other countries may be on a different business cycle and may not have entered a recession, while another country's economy may be experiencing recessionary pressures. There are, of course, risks to this type of investment. Some countries may be politically unstable and/or experiencing foreign exchange fluctuations.

Homer told the group that an important rule to remember is to diversify investments, invest regularly, and remember that investing doesn't take a lot of time but is extremely beneficial in the long run.

Heart and Stroke Foundation holds night of appreciation

Members of the Haliburton and District Heart and Stroke Foundation gathered at Birch Point Lodge Tuesday evening for their annual general meeting and to pay tribute to the volunteers who helped make this past year a very successful one.

Area co-ordinator for the foundation, Gwen McNuff of Peterborough was on hand to pay tribute to the local chapter. She noted that under the leadership of Estella Burch and Al Gostock, the Haliburton County group has surpassed its fund raising goal this year.

Special tribute was also paid to local chapter chairman, Al Gostock. He is a founding member of the local chapter and has announced he would be retiring after many years of service. McNuff thanked Gostock on behalf of the national organization and presented him with an award for his many years of service.

Also honoured for their contribution to the organization were Ernice Warder and Wendy Bateman.

Marg Graham, a community health nurse with the local health unit, was the guest speaker.

Information devalued

Walking down the street, I was congratulated for doing a program on breast cancer. "But we never covered that topic," I stammered. "Oh," she replied. "I must have seen it on Oprah."

People swear to me that phenomena such as UFOs, ESP and spontaneous human combustion are proven real. When I ask for the evidence, the answers are often "I read it somewhere," or "I saw it on TV."

We live in a world awash with information, which is considered the priceless resource for the coming world of high technology. The media trumpet the near limitless potential of the "information superhighway".

Cyberspace, virtual reality, Internet, a 500-channel universe of interactive television - these are the promised wonders of dazzling technological progress.

Today, "surfing the net" is the techno-equivalent of wearing designer clothes. "You don't have e-mail?" I'm often asked with incredulity. Or I'm told "You've got to get on the Web," to tap into the immense store of information and network with like minds.

Let me be frank. Technological feats in biotechnology, computer science and telecommunications enthral me. I jumped at the chance to get a VCR, compact disc player and microwave oven when they came on the market. I love my camera that enables a dolt like me to take wonderful pictures. The laptop computer that has accompanied me all over the world has transformed my life.

Technology is invented to serve a specific and immediate purpose. But I'm also aware that this precludes any understanding of the impact an invention will have beyond the narrow focus of its application in space and time.

History is rich in proof that every technology, however beneficial - from antibiotics to television, nuclear power, plastics, pesticides and automobiles - has costs. The more powerful the technology, the greater its consequences both positive and negative.

In the past, technology was created to serve people and society, but today as with the economy, people are being asked to serve it. Automation, huge and deadly fishing boats and giant fellerbunchers to cut trees, transform or eliminate jobs and employment.

Increasingly, profit and power are the primary motives behind the invention and application of new technologies.

Beyond the hype and techno-adulation, there are troubling questions. Theodore Roszak's book The Cult of Information took a critical look at the assumptions underlying the computer revolution: "For the information theorist, it does not matter whether we are transmitting a judgement, a shallow cliché, a deep teaching, a sublime truth, or a nasty obscenity. All are information...Depth, originality, excellence, which have always been factors in the evaluation of knowledge, have somewhere been lost in the fast, futurological shuffle...this is a liability that dogs every effort to inflate the cultural value of information."

Roszak believes the devaluation of information has profound consequences: "An information economy spends more and more of its resources accumulating and processing facts. We bury ever deeper the substructures of ideas on which information stands, placing them further from critical reflection."

He continues: "We begin to pay more attention to 'economic indicators' than to assumptions about work, wealth and well-being which underlie economic policy...The hard focus on information that the computer encourages must in time have the effect of crowding out new ideas, which are the intellectual source that generates facts."

Roszak might be dismissed as a neo-Luddite, a technophobe fearful of every technological innovation.

The same cannot be said of Clifford Stoll, author of Silicon Snake Oil: Second Thoughts on the Information Highway. He has been deeply immersed in the information network since its inception. His five modem-equipped computers are plugged into the info world, he surfs the net regularly and he loves his cyber-community.

Nevertheless, Stoll skewers some of the most widely held notions of the value of computers and Internet for schools and education, libraries, communities and personal relationships.

Stoll states his concerns about computer networks up front: "They isolate us from one another and cheapen the meaning of actual experience. They work against literacy and creativity. They will undercut our schools and libraries."

Stoll's critique reinforces the concerns of those of us who worry about the disconnection of urban children from the natural world. He says: "More than half of our children learn about nature from television, a third from school and less than 10 percent by going outdoors...no computer can teach what a walk through a pine forest feels like. Sensation has no substitute." More from Stoll next week.

Around the County Town

by Jeanne Sears (call 286-1538)

Tuesday afternoon at Haliburton Legion saw the beginning of the Annual Haliburton Seniors' Games with euchre. Sorry to report that Richard Adams, who was playing, had a heart attack and died shortly after.

Some ladies from the Gelert area were very busy last week at the Centre with an old-fashioned quilting bee. Seems this sewing art isn't lost to our County.

A new great-grandson for Pearl Barry. Matthew Charles, son of Tim and Karen Barry arrived in Hamilton. Congratulations to all.

Monday afternoon euchre game winners at St. Paul's on May 22 included Roberta Walker, K.T. Parker, Verna McDonald and Jack Chilton with most lone hands. The draw went to Irene Fuhr. Everyone is welcome to join this group every Monday at 1 o'clock.

Sincere good wishes to Hilda Harrison and Bette Herlihey who are on the sick list. May all go well with you.

The Stanhope Bridge players enjoyed their games at Stanhope Library on Monday starting at 1 p.m. Winners were Elsie Fleming, Russ Fair and Vange Croucher. For information on this group call 489-3300.

Bob and Audrey Vick visted with Bill, Julie and Meighan Woolfrey in Bridgenorth to celebrate Meighan's 4th birthday. Meighan came home with her grandparents for a few days.

Last euchre games until Fall were held at Gelert Centre on May 23 and the winners included Helen Byne, May Hicks, Don Curry, Ralph Schroter and most lone hands, Dorothy McElwain. See you in the Fall.

Club 35 euchre game winners on May 22 included Murray Daniels with most lone hands, Jean Scadden and Bill Durkin with the highs, Betty Matthews, Harold Smith and Lou Penick. Special prizes went to Bill Kleinschmidt, Pearl Kernohan, Jean Penick, Rhoda Woolner, Helen Lee, Norm Lee and the 50-50 draw to Bob Lewis. Next Wheels to meals will be June 6 at 12 noon.

I had several visitors last week - Carolyn Leaman and her daughter Karen from Newmarket and Muriel; Ewing from Scarborough. Muriel and I had a nice visit with Evelyn Henderson in Haliburton.

Weekend guests with Audrey and Bob Vick were Dale, Cathy and Tyler Vick from Vandorf.

Sincere sympathy goes to the families and friends of the late Bill Riddell, Dwight Sisson, Richard Adams and Mrs. Basil Sisson who passed away recently.

Euchre game winners at Noble Motel last Wednesday included Audrey Parker and Marcel Rousselle, with most lone hands going to Pat Rousselle. For info call 454-8298.

Folks will be busy at Gelert on Saturday, June 3 during the annual Cemetery Bee. Anyone interested is welcome to join in and help starting at 8 a.m.

Winners of the May 24 Branch 636 euchre games included Marie Dennie and Milton Fletcher with most lone hands, Lila Mitchell and Norm Lee with the highs and Marg Colton, John Mallon, Cecil Lee, T. McNeil, Frank Campagnolo, Ethel Baker and I. Sargent.

The County Town Museum committee met at the Bowron Homestead last Wednesday and they inform us they'd like to have volunteers to help at various times on July 1 and 2 at the lunch room during the Art Festival or at other times when the Complex is open during July and August. Call 286-1674 for details. Also, if you have good used articles, the committee would be pleased to receive them for their Annual Yard Sale on July 15. Call 286-1682.

Everyone seems to be very pleased with the huge crowd at Archie Stouffer School gym on Wednesday night and the situation after this community meeting seems a bit more positive. The speakers and chairman did a great job giving details of what is happening with the doctor situation and how they are working to try to solve the problem. Did you see yourself on the news on CHEX TV?

Green thumbs are on the grow at Staunworth Court

Gardening is a top item at Staunworth Court and residents hope the weather will cooperate. Vegetables have been planted and flowers are showing their colours in the surrounding beds.

Our latest meal together was a salad supper. The variety of salads brought by the residents was very impressive and they were all thoroughly enjoyed. The evening was followed by a further treat when Pastor Murray arrived with his guitar and led the folks in a lively sing-a-long. Pastor Murray is leaving our area shortly and Audrey Trumbull invited him over for this farewell.

Many of the Court residents attended the public meeting which was held at Archie Stouffer Elementary School regarding the doctor shortage. We were very impressed by the dedication and work being done by those on the committee. The subject of doctors and the maintenance of service at the Minden Hospital is a number one priority for the people living here and our full support is given to this committee.

Our representatives in the Sneaker Day event returned feeling much healthier and determined to continue the walk for health and to encourage others to do so. It was a very well organized event.

Much of our exercise is still of the arm type as we continue a helter skelter throwing of darts. Our aim has improved somewhat and the odd dart now lands near the centre of the board. Our next report should list some of the higher scores.

Although we never said goodbye,

The last few words I shared with you.
You're resting where no shadows fall,
In peaceful sleep you await us all,

God will link the broken chain,
When one by one, we'll meet again.

Always remembered by wife Allie and family, Jeff & Janice, Diana & Gary, Scotty, Kaylea and Ryan.

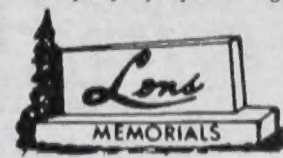

WALKER, Carl - In loving memory of my dear father who passed away on May 31, 1993, my birthday.

For as long as I live
I'll always be glad
That I was your daughter
And you were my Dad.
The day I stop missing you Dad
Is the day I hold your hand
In Heaven.
Love always,
